HONGKONG, October 3rd, 1899.

KANG YI has been commonly referred to as the Lord High Exterminator and his mission has incurred the odium of a device for squeezing. That a large part of the money he raises will be lost by leakage before it reaches Peking and that of the remaining balance much will be diverted from its legitimate use in a foreign conclusion, for no source of public revenue in China can escape the taint of corruption. Nevertheless, KANG's mission appears to be the outcome of dire necessity, and to be entitled to rather more respect than for signs he hitherto been inclined to accord to it. Peking in financial straits, additional revenue has become an absolute necessity, and whence can it be obtained but from the provinces? Naturally the provinces do not welcome the additional demands made upon them. The position, however, may lead to good results. Sweet are the uses of adversity, and with financial difficulties pressing upon the Peking Government, the various provincial Governments, and the guilds and individual merchants who are required to pay additional taxes, the ground may be prepared for a thoroughgoing financial reform. KANG's proposal to substitute a shop tax for the lohsin tax, on the ground that it would yield better results at a less cost, is an encouraging sign, even though the scheme has been pronounced impracticable.

What China stands principally in need of now with regard to her finances is a thoroughly competent foreign adviser with large powers. We know what Mr. McLEAVY BROWN accomplished in a very short time in Korea, and a similar improvement has been experienced in Siam, where the revenue brought into account was a few years ago only about $10,000,000, whereas since the services of a foreign adviser were obtained it has risen to about $17,000,000 and is continually increasing. Financial reform in China would be attended with equally satisfactory results and the bankruptcy now staring the country in the face would be averted. But, it may be asked, what better financial adviser could the Chinese Government have than Sir ROBERT HART? We are not unconscious of the valuable services Sir ROBERT HART has rendered to the Chinese Government and to foreign trade as head of the Customs Service, and had he been given the post of financial adviser-general thirty-five years ago perhaps no better selection could have been made. During that long period, however, his attention has been devoted almost exclusively to his own department, and when he has been called upon to advise on matters not immediately connected with the Customs Administration he has evinced a disposition to look at them through Chinese spectacles, due no doubt to his intimate association with Chinese officials and the influence of environment. Thus, many years ago when the question of opening up China by the establishment of railways and so forth was being debated, Sir ROBERT was all in favour of allowing the country to develop in its own way and at its own time and avoiding the use of pressure. That was the view then adopted and still holds and the result is seen before us to-day. Then again, when the question of saving the Ching tea trade by reducing it of the burden of taxation which has crushed it almost out of existence was discussed, Sir ROBERT HART was found opposed to any measure that might show an immediate loss of revenue. More recently his ruling with respect to the Inland Navigation Rules, being based on very narrow considerations, has impeded at the outset a trade that promised to add largely to the prosperity of the country and to the revenue. As the administrator of the Customs Service Sir ROBERT HART is all that could be desired and long may it be before he lays down the reins. The task of reorganizing the general finances of the country, however, is one that calls for all the energy of a younger man and which it would be unfair to ask the Inspector General personally to undertake in his declining years. A practical working arrangement would perhaps be to enlarge Sir ROBERT HART's office so as to include the general financial administration but to give him the assistance of an officer from the Indian Finance Department seconded for the purpose whose duty it should be to supervise the finances of all the departments other than the Customs. How great is the need for reorganization may be inferred from the fact that Kao Yi in his scheme for raising money from the Kwangtung provinces has called upon a number of Magistrates to contribute annually Tls. 20,000 each to the Imperial exchequer. The money is to come from the officials' pockets.

The Portuguese grubout Liberal is coming over from Macao to Hongkong this week for an extensive tour of her colonies. In addition to plague the cases of communicable disease reported last week were one of enteric fever and one of pulmonary fever.

Today's supplement contains—Overseas—a Japanese Cyclopaedia, Descriptive Fire in the Sea, The Social Electric Railway, The Recent Chinese Mission to Japan, Chinawangtung, &c.

At the Magistracy yesterday Mr. Gomersal, Acting Police Magistrate, gave his decision in the Pinshawing case, which the Land Investment Company have for soliciting to Company had been summoned for appearing to have taken the Man Street and Sun Street houses during the months of July and August. Mr. Hastings, on behalf of the company, contended that his clients were not liable, as much as the house in question had been let to a Chinaman for five years from first of January last. His Worship held, however, that as far as the company's agents were liable and imposed a fine of $10 in each case.

The Hongkong correspondent of the Courrier d'Hongkong relates the piracy prevailing in the Canton delta, and goes on to say that "the English, who never used to consider piracy, have made this state of affairs a protest for sending a garrison to the West River." The English wish to police Kwangtung and Kwangsi, and consider it a wise investment, as they have done in Egypt. It behoves our Government, however, to take steps to prevent that the French Consuls there and at Canton may be urged to request the departure of a gunboat from Saigon. This gunboat, which under the circumstances would have been compelled without delay, has so far produced no effect. It will be too late when we think of taking action otherwise than by diplomatic notes.

Witnesses in the discussion of the military question reached an acute stage a plentiful stock of abuse is poured out upon the landlords, who are represented as responsible for the overcrowding evil. The landlords have broad backs and can bear the loadings provided upon them. As a class they possess no particular claim to public sympathy, but neither should they be regarded as especially reprobate. Like other investors, their object is to get the best return; they can claim their investment, and however desirable it may be that they should be guided by philanthropic principles in the conduct of their business, it is idle to expect, as a matter of practical politics, that they will be so guided. Nor is it to be assumed that fixing rents on a low scale by process of law would diminish overcrowding. The only result would be to transfer a portion of the profits from the landlord to the tenants, as the latter would sub-let or take in lodgers up to the full limit authorised by the law as to air space and to such further limit as the superintendence of official inspection might permit. The law of economics are immutable and no amount of official interference with the "higgling of the market" as to rents will produce any result on the question of overcrowding. In agrarian districts in Ireland the law gives the tenant of land the right to a reasonable rent and the right of tenure and guarantees that the rent of the sea, in order to keep the population on the land, but we would be surprised to hear that the law had anything to say as to the rents to be paid for rooms in Dublin tenement houses, or even as to the prior of lodgings in the country. The suggested establishment of a rent court in Hongkong, as suggested by a correspondent whose letter appears in another column, therefore appears inapplicable. Proposals for interfering with the settlement of the rent as between landlord and tenant are in fact to be deprecated as calculated to divert attention from more practical remedies. It is the duty of the legislature to deal with overcrowding by rigorously enforcing rules as to the minimum air space to be allowed for each occupant; by opening up new residential districts, by facilitating communication with the suburbs by trams and ferries, and, if it should be well, by establishing public lodging houses, but it would waste its time and do harm instead of good by saying that A, having a room to let, should let it to B for 83 a month if C also wanted it and was willing to give 83 a month. To carry the argument to its reduction of absurdum, why not say that landlords shall charge no rent at all? That would result in an enormous influx of population, landlords would no longer have any inducement to build houses to meet the increased requirements, and the evil of overcrowding would become worse and worse.

There were 1,653 visitors to the City Hall last week, of whom 178 were Europeans.

During the twenty-four hours ended at noon on Sunday there was 1 case of plague and no deaths; during the succeeding twelve hours there was 1 death and 1 case. We understand that a case has been reported to the Stats Government, and will cease to regard the colour of the disease.

At the offices of the Public Works Department yesterday afternoon Mr. G. J. W. King offered for sale by auction Kowloon Rd. Lot No. 51 at Mong Kok. The site, which is under water to a depth of 30 feet, and the amount of land 1,000 square feet. Starting at an amount of $600 the bidding, which was very restricted, ran up to $14,100, at which price, which is the rate per foot per foot, Mr. Chan Ng was the purchaser. The site is to be occupied by boat-building sheds.

Mr. F. Kiens, the local manager of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, gave a select dinner party at the Royal Hotel on Saturday evening, on the occasion of Mr. W. M. McDonald's, the energetic and obliging agent of the said Company, leaving Hongkong for Shanghai, to which port he has been transferred. From the speech delivered it was very evident that the Company enjoys the greatest confidence of the public and that Mr. McDonald's made himself most popular during his stay in this Colony.

McDonald Road has now been extended to Kennedy Road.

A walk along it, starting from the Kennedy Road, will be found exceptionally interesting on account of the view it affords of the large amount of building that has been carried on in the districts and that which is still in progress. From no one point can such a comprehensive view of the city be obtained for a short distance along the road, the modern pedestrian will see, facing him quite a large number of substantially built European houses, all of very recent erection and some still incomplete. Indeed, the view is the houses on the Peak Road, most of which are also comparatively new. The road as a whole gives the pedestrian striking impression of the progress the colony has made within recent years. As to the style of architecture adopted opinion may differ.

Most of the new houses are highly ornate in the style adopted and built with the most modern materials.

After a series of competitions extending over several months the Subscript Cap. Cup was won by Subscript Cap. Hart, by Mr. Scott, with a score of 64, being 6 points off the possible. This close the Subscript Cap. competition, and promises for the Inter-Continental Match will now commence in earnest. There were 23 entries on Saturday. Following are the best scores.
